

Handbook of Education Policy

Elgar Handbooks in Education

Edited by Gerard A. Postiglione, Professor Emeritus, Honorary Professor, The University of Hong Kong, Christopher J. Johnstone, Associate Professor, University of Minnesota, US and Wesley R. Teter, Research Fellow, Center for Advanced School Education and Evidence-based Research (CASEER), University of Tokyo, Japan

This insightful Handbook is an essential guide to educational policy around the world. As shifting geopolitics, intensified climate change, and widening economic inequalities persist, the need for informed educational policy is critical.

‘The new Handbook of Education Policy edited by Postiglione, Johnstone and Teter is a welcome addition to the academic literature on the transformation of education policy in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic. The 23 chapters of this well-researched book give a comprehensive analysis of how education policy must adapt to a radically changed world. Through a skilful combination of thematic pieces and case studies from a large range of countries, the chapter authors challenge us to embrace new education policy concepts, such as public value governance and knowledge democratization, that can foster innovation and accountability in times of uncertainty. Gerard Postiglione, Christopher Johnstone, and Wesley Teter should be congratulated for this excellent scholarly contribution that has the potential of influencing policy makers all over the world to design and implement more sustainable and innovative education policies.’

– Jamil Salmi, Diego Portales University, Chile

‘This Handbook combines an up-to-date overview with theoretically-informed analysis of global education policies. It is erudite, insightful and original. It will be a vital resource for education policy researchers and an excellent starting point for students, in any location.’

– Stephen Ball, University College London, UK
