CASEER SEMINAR

The Temporal Dimension of Policy Transfer

The presentation discusses the global reform wave School-Autonomy-with-Accountability (SAWA) that traveled across the global between 1990s and 2010s. It provides a retrospective analysis of the temporal dimension of that global education reforms. Drawing on a comparative, transnational, and global perspective and using SAWA as an example of fundamental reform, Professor Gita Steiner-Khamsi differentiates between the time, timing, tempo, sequence, lifespan, and age of policies. The study contributes to public policy studies with special attention given to the education sector.
